LITTLE VICTIM DIES.

Driscoll Lad, Shot Near Smith land, Dies from Wounds.

BOY WAS ONLY EIGHT YEARS OLD.

Ed. Driscoll, the eight-year-old boy who was shot in Livingston county, six miles from Smithland, last Sunday by Will Wurlitzer, leased the old Powell farm, two aged about twenty-five years, died Tuesday night after severe suffering. Wurlitzer was arrested Tues day afternoon by Sheriff Cowper, and is now incarcerated in the Livingston county jail on the charge of murder. The funeral of the little victim was largely attended.

Two stories of the tragedy are told. One is that the lad persisted in playfully calling Wurlitzer a gold Democrat, and this so aggravated him that he shot the child at close range with a shotgun; the boy's left arm was almost torn from the body, and a large hole was torn in his left side.

Wurlitzer, who is said to be a half witted man, claims that the shooting was an accident, but the boy in his dying statement charged that it was intentional. The course of the shot shows that the boy was going in the copposite direction from Wurlitzer, The slayer's name has been published as woman. Even that greatest of all Worley, which is incorrect.

Except to submit the proposition in the foregoing terms there was no discussion with Admiral Walker as to what further steps were likely to be taken except to bring the proposition to the attention of the secretary of state and the president.

Admiral Walker called at the state department at noon and communicated to Secretary Hay the offer which M. Boeufve had submitted in behalf ing metal workers. Bodies of strikers of the canal company. The matter was, soon after, brought to the attention of the president.

Three Life Rafts Pe

Of the six life rafts launched by the Walla Walla after the boats had been filled, three and a portion of another were found and their occupants rescued by the schooner Dis-

On this little fleet of light craft hard battle for life were fought. One was half the time two feet under water. On another a man went mad. His mania took the form or attempt ed self-destruction. His companions kept him from drowning himself. They can not tell how, in such a sea, on such a craft, they saved their own lives. Yet they saved them and the life of the madman, too. On still another raft were 12 persons, and everyone was saved. The man who was driven temporarily insane was Frank Orrege, a fireman.

Berry Last Year to Keep It Supplied.

Washington, Jan. 4 .- The coffee importation of the United States will in the calendar year 1901 be the largest in the history of our import trade. Eleven months' figures of the treasury bureau of statistics show that the importation of coffee amounted to 967,969,585 pounds in the eleven months ending with November, against 707,496,152 in the corresponding months of 1900; 817,223,877 in the corresponding months of 1899; 744,-910,179 in the corresponding months of 1898; 726,119,996 in 1897, and 567,-.929,817 in 1896.

These figures indicate not only that the coffee importation of 1901 will be larger than those of any preceding year, but that they will for the first time exceed one billion pounds. The value of the coffee imports of the year will reach about $70,000,000.

How Gen. Chaffee Views It. John T. Kreider, one of the signers of this proclamation, was tried recently by military commission in the Philippines on a charge of treason, and the records of the court martial have just been received at the war department. The preponderance of Have proof, said Gen. Chaffee, in reviewing the case, was in favor of the contention of the accused that he was held by the insurgents as a prisoner and took no part in operations against the United States, gave no aid and comfort to the enemy, made reasonable effort to escape and was compelled, by his captors, under duress to sign the above proclamation, by threats of violence, in case he refused. "While no treasonable intent or overt act is established against the accused by competent evidence," said Gen. Chaffee, "it, however, remains to be remarked that is the duty of the American soldier to face impending danger of death rather than sign a treasonable proclamation, even if it be prepared, as was the one in this case, by the enemy. Nor should he do any other act that might have even a semblance of giving the enemy encouragement. The true soldier not only takes the risks late Friday night, a fast east-bound of battle, but all other risks of life Pennsylvania railroad mail and ex- growing out of any and all incidents press train No. 14, ran into a slow of war, and accepts the chance of life or death rather than do aught to inand a few minates later a west-bound jure his country's cause or dishonor

Backache and Urinary Trouble.

Among the many famous investigated cures of Swamp-Root the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—When I wrote you last March for a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, my wife was a great sufferer from backache, rheumatism and urinary trouble. After trying the sample bottle, she bought a large bottle here at the drug store. That did her so much good she bought more. The effect of Swamp-Root was wonderful and almost immediate. She has felt ao return of the old trouble since Lame back is only one symptom of kidney trouble—one of many. Other symptoms showing that you need Swamp-Root are, Other symptoms obliged to pass water often during the day and to get up many times at night, inability to hold your urine, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, catarrh of the bladder, uric acid, constant headache, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousess, irregular heart-beating, rheumatism, bloating, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion.

If your water when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for wenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling, or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science. Swamp-Root is the great discovery of Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist. Hospitals use it with wonderful success in both slight and What Henry Walton said and did, no one knew. He was a lonely man, living somewhere in lodgings, and had no confidant.

Elanor returned to town and her small rooms up six flights, and went to work on her cartoons with redoubled energy. The rest of the family remained in the country trying to realize that Aunt Euba had died at last and left her namesake-penniless. Their castles had tumbled about their ears. And Henry Walton? Nobody knew anything about him, not even where he lived.

Elanor worked hard, telling herself between whiles that she was not disappointed: that she had never expected to inherit anything from her cranky relative. "It is nobler to earn one's bread by the sweat of one's brow than to live at ease in one's own town house." But-well, after look and prove to you that you had a series of rounds with the editors, the sweat of the brow seemed to be more in evidence than either nobleness or bread.

It was with a distinct sigh that the young cartoonist put away the remains of her simple supper and sank down on the rug before the fire. And then it was that she first heard the violin. Some one in the next room began playing-a low sweet reverie of sound as though the player was childhood when she was a wild young heart." tomboy with all a boy's sense of honor and a girl's willfulness. Don't you believe if you were down on your luck it would help you more for me to come in with a lot of tea-cakes and roses and help you fix up a dainty tea-table while I assured you that you were a genius and bound to win out than if I were to come in with a rule and a pencil and an austere failed to carry out your idea in some trivial detail?"

FARMER AND PLANTER. | raised as it should be and given a SOIL AND SOIL TREATMENT.

Farms Run Down as the Result of Bad Management, Not of the Demands of the Crops.

The earth was made for the purpose of growing plants, and it is well and wisely made. The soil is perfecttion to this business, that instead of exhausting the soil, they leave it better by growing in it. The larger the growth upon any given area this year, the larger still is the possible growth next year upon the same soil. Such is the mutual relationship between the powers of the soil and the grow crops continuously upon the same soil, with ever-increasing capacity for growing more and larger crops on the part of the soil. How, then, do farms get poor? It is the result of bad management, and not of the demands made upon the soil by the growing crops. Vegetation upon an average is 75 per cent. water, 22 per cent. air and only three per cent soil. Good farming returns to the soil so much of this organized water and air, that it more than compensates for the three per cent. taken from the soil. Hence, it is a mistake to say that the soil is exhausted or made poorer by the small part it furnishes the crop. Then you ask why do we find fields and farms, after years of cultivation, become poor and non-productive? The causes are many. Mainly bad management in plowing when the soil is wet, and in plowing so shallow that the soluble plant food is washed away or leached out by the rain water. Continuous clean culture and barning the waste vegetable matter helps to hasten this condition.

Mechanical condition of the soil: The power of any soil to produce depends largely upon the mechanical | condition of the soil. Hard, compact soils will not turn loose their elements of plant food in sufficient quanties to make large crops. A good soil must be finely pulverized soil. Shallow soils with hardpan under them will not yield large crops. They do not permit sufficient root growth. The tender rootlets can not pierce this hardpan in search for food. Again, they do not furnish sufficient water for rapid and fullgrowth. Plants require very large supplies of water to furnish their food in solution and keep up healthy circulation. About three hundred pounds of water must pass through most plants to leave one pound of dry matter. This would require about two thousand pounds to pass through a cornstalk to leave one pound of lint. The soil agricultural department and the Texmust be fine and deep and puverized, not made into mud or mortar. It must also contain rotting vegetable matter to furnish the humus, without which plants can not grow.

Rich soil: Soil in this condition will be rich. It will produce large crops. It matters not if it be red or gray, sandy or clay. So much of our land has been put in bad mechanical condition that but few farms will produce large crops. Hence the necessity of using commercial fertilizers. These contain phosphoric acid and petash readily soluble and vailable. They greatly increase the yields because of this fact. They feed the growing plant. The more vigorous Trans-Siberian-Manchurian line of rail- made any resistance, or, fleeing to the the plant, the more they help-just as it pays to give extra food to a thriving pig or beef. The Time for Thinking.

The best time for deep thinking is when other duties are not pressing. Long winter evenings have always been famous for developing mental processes and perfecting intellectual merchandise. It is a time when the host of experiences may be assembled in battle array and subjected to a rigid inspection, and each intangible individual questioned as to its right to exist as a factor in future operations; when contending theories may be culled, as a fancier culls his cockerels, the palpably worthless abandoned, the possibly worthy subjected to further experimentation and new and better ones initiated. In all undertakings there is a period for thought that necessarily precedes intelligent action. It is the initiatory process and indispensable. To begin action without mental preparation is like shingling a roof from the top downwards-leakage and labor lost will be the sure result. This is as true in agriculture as elsewhere. The farmer should read everything he can get hold of concerning his business. He should carefully sift the chaff from the sound grain. He should keep in touch with the experiment station work, in his state, at least, and let no valuable information pass him without taking toll of it .- Texas Farm and Rancher.

Macaroni Wheat in Texas.

The dissemination and growing of macaroni wheat through the Texas experiment station, promises some good results. A fair crop of this wheat was grown this year at San Antonio, on a farm where oats failed completely from drought. This wheat is grown successfully in Europe, where the rainfall is less than eighteen inches per annum, and without irrigation. The coming year about sixty Texas farmers in different sections of the state will test this wheat, and as station hope, and expect, it will, there will soon be a demand for all the seed available.-Farm and Ranch.

-A correspondent says the Elberta peach has been over-planted. Before agreeing to this proposition, we would better wait until the trees now planted come into bearing. If too many are produced for immediate consumption, why not can them?

-Many farmers do not appreciate the value of good tools to work with. With manufacturers it is different. The intelligent maker of things knows that he can not compete in his business unless he has the very best tools to work with.

wealth can only flow from private prosperity. It is wicked for private individuals to waste their substance. It is criminal for a state to expend more than its income or promote wastefulness in official life. The manner of the living of public men receives more careful scrutiny by the plain people than they imagine. There flows forth therefore from the recklessness of the livings of some public men not only the jealousies which engender crime, but habits of wastefulness among the people themselves."

The subject of conversation was the fact that so many rich men are seeking places in high official life, not for the purpose of earning their livings thereby, but for the purpose of having exalted social station. Senator McMillan, of tional capital promotes an atmosphere of aristocracy which is inconsistent with the spirit of our government.

The problem of receipts and expenditures, which Secretary Gage says children should be taught to solve, has occupied the minds of many mature men and women, including Wilkins Micawber and all of his class. Few can easily learn that wealth consists of the savings rather than the earnings. The miracle of the loaves and fishes was completed only when obedience was given to the command: "Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing may be lost." The miracle taught not only a lesson of the divine power of the Theanthropos, but also inculcated a lesson of political economy. Nature knows no waste. She utilizes the smallest atoms. Man alone is wasteful. Even the beasts of the field are economical. The squirrels save and the bees busily store away food for the winter. Man alone does not seem disposed to look ahead "for a rainy day."

Grover Cleveland once said: "It is our neighbors who keep us poor, beincomes." A similar lesson was incan live upon ten shillings a week, he republic. can live upon nine and eleven pence. Poverty is relative and therefore not ignoble. Neediness is a positive degradation. If I have only £100 a year, I He said that as soon as he was married am rich as compared with the major- he undertook to buy a small house on ity of my countrymen. "I learned that lesson from Senator | wives and husbands for the coming Dolliver last spring," says Senator | generation.

WORST OF TYRANTS. Dubois, of Idaho, "and I have taken a little flat on East Capitol street, about four blocks away from the capitol. You see, my wife did not want me to come back to the senate; but I told her I must go either to the senate or the poor house, and so she let me come to the senate. Now, with $5,000 a year, and living in a small flat, we can get along and probably get a little bit ahead. You must know that when a senator takes a flat, that fact is recognized by all society as notification that tainments and squander fortunes in Novoe Vremya. flowers and wines. I am one of the poor men in the senate, and shall live as a poor man should."

"From Senator Plumb I learned that lesson of economy, long before I exto live within a stated income should pected to come to the senate," says taken a flat near the Shoreham, where I am within a minute's walk of all should be understood that public street car lines. There is no elevator in the house, and I am on the third floor. Nobody will climb those stairs except those who are anxious to see me, and whom I will be glad to welcome. The general public will understand without any word from me that there will be no entertainments or banquets in that flat. The people who live for that sort of thing are not in the habit of climbing stairs. I hope to be able to live within my salary, but it will be a daily study of economy for me to do so.'

One of the popular fallacies throughout the country is the idea that only rich men come to the senate. The three mentioned above are all poor men; and there are others. Senator Knute Nelson, of Minnesota, is a poor man and lives economically now, as he did when he was a member of the house of representatives.

Senators Allison and Dolliver, of Iowa; Cullom and Mason, of Illinois; the senators from North Dakota, South Dakota, Idaho and all of the states south of Mason and Dixon's line are without wealth. It will thus be seen that the body which has been sneeringly alluded to as "the millionaire club" is not composed of very rich men. On the contrary, a large majority of the senators must be classed with the poor in this world's goods.

Whether the people should send rich men to the senate can be determined only by the legislatures of the several states. But they should bear in mind the fact that acquired wealth does not reduce a man's usefulness; whereas inherited wealth frequently produces love of ease and effeminacy. There are several rich men in the senate; but He finally succeeded in winning a each one of them has acquired his charming woman for his wife, and, wealth by his own efforts, and they are after spending a few days at Bay St. ginia. The bill was for the modest sum of $10,000, and bore the businesslike inscription: "Please settle." Making an excuse to get away from the desk, the benedict hastily sought a friend and asked his advice. "Send your check for the amount," was the advice he received. Thinking that any fool friend could have given that kind of advice, the man went away back and sat down to think the matter over.

Finally it dawned upon him that the bill was a hoax, and, taking his friend's advice, he wrote a check on an imaginary bank and sent it to the landlord, who then sent him the receipted bill.

The whole transaction was like buy ing a gold brick with counterfeit

But the man nearly dropped dead when he first got the bill, and now he says that the next bridal trip he takes he will either make a written contract with all hotel men or take out an accident insurance policy that covers death by heart disease.

Important Discovery.

SALEM, KY., Jan. 3, 1902. EDITOR PRESS: By experiment have found a remedy for smut colic in cattle, caused from feedng on corn stalks.

I found one of mine down and not able to get up, was swollen a great deal and having convulsions. I stuck my knife in her left flank and let the gas out, then gave eleven raw eggs, beaten well. I then bled her in the neck like bleeding a horse; the blood was very thick and black. I had to slacken the cord several times on account of the convulsions. I then gave 12 more eggs with half a pint of castor oil. I gave all treatment with her on the ground. She never flinched from it. On examining those that died I found the stomachs coated with the smut, and mucus all dried up.

The white of eggs starts action. The second day gave a good drench of Pratts food. I would not advise the use of a knife unless they were badly swollen, but give the eggs as soon as they get sick.

I would give the horse the same treatment, except the use of the knife; bleed freely. Respectfully,
